Dear Sir or Madam

I'm looking for a software engineering job in the video game environment in California.

I'm very interested into creating a tool that aims to help and increase someone's productivity. I think that the first element to achieve this goal is to focus on the user interface.

During my masters degree, I've learned multiple skills in numerous programming languages including JAVA, C# and C++. I've also learned a lot about, project management and user interface design during my apprenticeship at the Atos company.

I would be grateful if you can consider me for this position. I'm available for an interview at any time.
